DECIDE SUICIDE IS DEATH CAUSE

Miss Myrtle Thorne of This City is Released After Investigation of Drowning of Bessie Wicks.

IN CAMBRIDGE CITY CANAL

Alleged That Local Young Woman and Suicide's Husband Were Intimate and Caused Rash Act.

Since the prosecutor and coroner of Wayne county have arrived at the conclusion that Mrs. Bessie Wicks took her own life by jumping into the canal near her home in Cambridge City Friday afternoon, Miss Myrtle Thorne of this city, half-sister of Mrs. Wicks, who has been making her home with the Wickses for the past three weeks, and the husband of the dead woman, have been released from jail. They were arrested Friday evening on suspicion, pending investigation of the death of Mrs. Wicks.

Miss Thorne, who was held by the police, is a step-daughter of James Thorne, a laborer of this city and has been residing here all her life until three weeks ago, when she went to Cambridge City to work. It will be remembered that Miss Thorne has been in the limelight here before as she was one of the principals in court not many years ago. It seems from all reports from Cambridge City that several Rushville people have been interested in the proceedings, which are alleged to have led to the suicide of Mrs. Wicks. The Richmond Palladium adds the following details concerning the suicide:

Suicide, not murder, has been definitely fixed as the cause of the death of Mrs. Bessie Wicks, the Cambridge City woman found in the Whitewater canal, near Cambridge, Friday evening. Prosecutor Charles E. Ladd and Acting Coroner J. M. Wampler have completed a preliminary investigation of the strange affair and while not ready to give out an official verdict of suicide, both have stated that is their opinion.

Ira Wicks, the husband and Myrtle Thorne, who immediately were arrested following the discovery of the body, were released Saturday evening. The Thorne girl, who is only nineteen years of age, had been visiting in the Wicks home and is a half sister to the dead woman. It was claimed she and Wicks had been intimate, but both denied the fact in Prosecutor Ladd's investigation.

Jealousy from the alleged intimacy between her husband and the Thorne girl, and deep humiliation because of the action of her husband and his friends, James Thorne, step-father of Myrtle Thorne, and Chester Barnes, the Thorne girl's sweetheart, who it is claimed made the Wicks' home a rendezvous for their dissipation, are held by the prosecutor and coroner, as responsible for the action of Mrs. Wicks.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Wicks wrote to the Rushville people to stay away from her home because they were not wanted, but the same day, Myrtle Thorne came to Cambridge to work and took up her home with the Wickses.

From then until her death it is said Mrs. Wicks lived in torture. She was an extremely religious woman, being a member of a church. She was respected by all her friends and many times is said to have remonstrated with Wicks, because he persisted in making his home a carousal for his drunken friends.

Until last Thursday night there had been no open trouble, but then Wicks came home drunk, started trouble and was arrested. He was released the next day and the whole Rushville bunch were at his home for dinner.

Two Females Worked Successfully at Shelbyville Last Week.

Two strange women worked successfully in Shelbyville the latter part of last week during the fair by stealing a cigar drummer's two grips and it is believed that they are the same females who successfully robbed a local man at the Connersville fair. The two grips had been checked over the traction line before they were stolen. The two women made away with them and have never been located.

BELIEVE BELL HAS LOCATED IN CANADA

St. Paul Physician of Smokeless Powder Fame Sends Word to His Former Friends.

MAIL TO BE SENT TO TORONTO

It is very likely that Dr. John W. Bell, erstwhile president of the Bell Smokeless Powder Company and physician at St. Paul, has hung out his shingle in Toronto, Canada according to information received by his friends in his home town, from which he ceremoniously fled one week ago yesterday. The word came through Dr. C. W. Pagel, who was at one time associated with Dr. Bell in a business and professional way at St. Paul. The former St. Paul physician dropped a short note to his former partner, asking that he notify some of his friends in St. Paul to have all of the physician's mail forwarded to Toronto, Canada. He did not mention anything about returning to his old home and it presumed that he intended to remain there definitely.

NEED HAVE NO FEAR FROM CAR STRIKE

Secretary of Columbus Driving Association, Writes Here That Conditions Are Again Normal.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTEND RACES

Rush county people, who expect to attend the grand circuit race meeting at Columbus, Ohio, the week of the nineteenth, need have no worry over the street car strike in that city as they are assured that there will be no difficulty from that source. H. D. Sheppard, secretary of the Columbus Driving Association, which organization has charge of the races, has written here to make it definitely understood that visitors in the city that week will meet with no trouble. He says that the street car strike is practically over and that the people there are riding without any interference whatever. Frank Wilson wrote a letter of inquiry and found that conditions were all right. Many local fast horse fanciers attend that meeting each year as it is closer than any other grand circuit meeting.

CITY SCHOOLS OPENED TODAY

Departmental Work in Grades and Manual Training Departments Are the New Features.

STATISTICS NOT ANNOUNCED

Roy Jones Does Large Business With School Books—Attendance is up to Average.

As the children of the city wended their way to the Rushville domiciles of learning this morning, a tinge of regret arose in many a youth's and man's brain, who realize more and more as the years roll along what a mistake they have made in not making the most of the educational opportunities that had been their privilege.

From seven-thirty to eight fifteen more boys and girls were seen on the street than have seen for the last three months. Eight-twenty found about the usual number of students in the various rooms ready to start on the years journey to higher things. A few minutes were taken for signing up, assigning lessons, and giving information as to what books to buy. After the usual short first morning session it was a continuous line for nearly an hour to the business section of the city.

Within the last few years all school supplies as far as text books are concerned have been centered at the 99 cent store. If one should ask Roy Jones what is the busiest day of the year in his store he would probably reply the first day of school. This morning an extra supply of clerks were to be found at the book counter, who busied themselves throughout the entire first few hours after the dismissal of the morning session of the school, selling books of all varieties.

Authentic statistics have not been compiled for schools of the city as yet, but Superintendent Scholl believes that all departments will be well filled as last year. Forty-three freshmen entered high school, and about eight students came in from other schools to enter the Senior class. The beginners in the first grades of the various buildings will probably be a little in the rear of last year. Miss Belle Gregg, principal of the Jackson school, reports 271 students at her building.

The outlook for the school year is excellent in every way. With the introduction of the departmental work in the grades a great step has been taken toward what is considered by the foremost educators of the country as the greatest evolution in pedagogical work of modern times. The introduction of the manual training department and sewing department is a first move to what is considered as the practical side of the common school and one which undoubtedly has its value. The patrons of the Rushville schools can feel proud of the work of Supt. Scholl in introducing the most modern of theories at a time when they have been thoroughly tried and proven successful, but yet at a time before the slightest rust of age has gathered on them. The patrons support of the school will aid materially in keeping up its standard and thus indirectly they will aid in bringing that perfect Utopia which the brainiest men of the world maintain can only be brought through education.

FALLS FROM SCHOOL STEPS.

Cyril Caron, son of Charles Caron, the Candy Kitchen man, fell from the Jackson school building steps this morning and received a gash above the eye that required medical attention. The injury will not keep him from school.

WAS INJURED IN RUNAWAY

Jesse Ridout of Circleville Sustains Fractured Collar Bone, and Scalp Wound.

HAPPENED IN SEXTON STREET

Horse Scared After a Freight Had Passed, Started Kicking and Ran up the Street.

It was a case of "take your medicine" with Jesse Ridout this morning either way he went in a runaway and as a result of jumping he is now suffering with a fractured collar bone, a scalp wound and muscular soreness. Mr. Ridout had driven his family horse to this city from his home in Circleville. He had occasion to go to the north part of Sexton street and as he neared the C. H. & D. railroad near Fourth street on Sexton he was necessitated a short delay for a C. H. & D. freight to pass.

After he had crossed the tracks his horse was seized with that nervous shock and fear that is so common to the human race after the danger has passed. As soon as it had crossed the tracks to the north it started a kicking and running campaign, and one that is rarely equalled. At Fifth street on Sexton it started to make a military turn very near on to the curb. Its driver seeing that a tremendous crash with a telephone pole was inevitable, made a "flying leap" through the air, alighting on his head and shoulder.

Medical aid was summoned and he was taken to the office of his physician, where it was found that he had suffered a fractured collar bone, a slight scalp wound and several slight bruises. The horse suffered a few injuries in its experience and the rig was partially demolished. Mr. Ridout's injuries were inevitable, either course he took—that of staying with the rig or jumping. His wounds, while slight, are of a painful nature.

WOULD STIMULATE INTEREST IN CHILD

Juvenile Corner, Provided With Small Tables and Chairs, is Established in Public Library.

TO HAVE STORY TELLING HOUR

A juvenile corner has now been established at the public library which is provided with a low table and small chairs for the use of the very small children. On this table will be found good picture and story books, stereopticon views to entertain and instruct the wee ones. Miss Sleeth, the librarian, in a few weeks will try a plan that has been very successful in every library, namely to entertain the children once a week with a story telling hour at which time some good story will be told or read to the child in order to stimulate in them a love and interest for good books and also that they may become more familiar with the library.

PROGRESS BEING MADE EVERY DAY

Narrow Strip of Paving in North Main Street Has Been Completed.

HUNGARIANS ARRIVED TODAY

When the shades of evening gather today the entire narrow strip of paving in North Main street will have been completed. This strip is about 920 feet in length. Concrete has been laid to about 100 feet below Eleventh street. If all goes well, progress will be made with more than double the former rapidity from now on. The construction company has experienced quite a little difficulty in getting men to stay with the job. Last week the forty foreigners that came to go to work had no more than arrived until they left for Indianapolis. Today twenty-five Hungarians arrived from Columbus, Ohio, to begin work on the contract.

BUSY DAYS AT COURT HOUSE

Judge Will M. Sparks Has Rendered Decision in Two Miner Cases and Dismisses One.

RALPH STIFFLER IS BAILIFF

Orme Heirs File Partition Suit—Grand Jury Begins Deliberations.

The dullness of the last three months at the court house is a thing of the past. The county clerk and circuit judge are both very busy men at the present on account of the September term of court. In the case of Andrew F. English versus J. A. English et al, on a note, the demand of which was $135, Judge Sparks gave a judgment of $60 and costs. In the case of the same party against the same parties, with the exception of Frank J. Hall, on a note for $80, the hearing was dismissed and the costs were paid by the defendants. In the case of Frank Green versus himself as executor of the estate of Emaline Buell, the plaintiff was awarded $10 and costs.

This morning, the heirs of Henry and Minerva Orme, filed suit on partition ex parte. The suit is filed over 264 acres of land and two pieces of property in Rushville. The object of the suit is to make a division of the real estate that will be satisfactory to all the heirs.

The grand jury, with Harry E. Stagger as foreman, Frederick Kessler, P. A. Newhouse, Charles J. Murphy, Fred Lightfoot and Theodore Sampson as other members, began deliberation this morning in the grand jury room. It is thought that this session will be a very busy one in the face of the many investigations that are to be made.

This session of the court finds a new bailiff in the person of Ralph Stiffler, who accepted the position Saturday.

RAISED MONEY YESTERDAY

$216.57 Was Donated on Rally Day at Second M. E. Church.

Nicholas of Shelbyville preached both morning and evening. He proved himself along with the Rev. Leggett to be an exceptional money raiser. The two ministers succeeded in raising $261.57 to go toward paying off the indebtedness of the church. Rev. Nicholas will preach again tonight and many people are expected to hear him.

NUGGETS OF GOLD

Some of the Largest Ever Struck
Were Found by Chance.

THE OLIVER MARTIN CHUNK.

It Was Turned Up by a Miner Who Was Digging a Grave For His Drowned Comrade—A Starving Miner Unearthed the "Welcome Stranger."

Nowhere does fortune indulge her love of the dramatic and the sensational more fully than in the gold fields.

Take, for instance, the story of the discovery of the world famous "Blanche Barkley" nugget in the early days of Australian gold mining, which sent a thrill around the world.

Samuel Napier, a sailor, with his brother Charles and one Robert Ambrose, their cook and general handy man, had been digging for gold for six months at Kingower, about forty miles from Bendigo, without discovering as much of the precious metal as would pay their living expenses, when one August day, to tell the story in Napier's own words: "We had dug down about fourteen feet to the pipe clay stratum and were shuffling around in the bottom of the shaft more dead than alive from the heat. Old Ambrose lit his pipe and leaned against the side of the hole to rest. Just then I struck something with my pick. I turned it up so the light could strike it, and, by jimmie, it was a chunk of gold as big as a Hubbard squash!" The nugget sold for $35,000.

Among the thousands who flocked to the Victorian gold fields in the early fifties were two Cornish miners, John Deason and Richard Oates, who staked a claim near the village of Mollague. They set to work with vigor, confident that in a few months they would be able to retire to their native Cornwall rich men, but their expectations were doomed to cruel disappointment. Not only months, but many years, passed and found them still as far removed from fortune as at the beginning, and by 1859, fifteen years after they began their search for gold, they were reduced to the last straits. Starvation stared them in the face.

In despair the miner seized his pick and wandered away to the outskirts of the gold field, and as he wandered, downcast and heavy hearted, he noticed a gleam of yellow in a rut made by a peddler's cart. Lifting his pick, with a few frantic blows he brought to light an enormous nugget, which, with all his strength, he could barely raise an inch from the ground. The nugget, which was soon known the world over as the "Welcome Stranger," actually weighed two hundredweight and was sold for nearly $50,000.

And these were but a few of the many similar blocks of gold discovered in Australia under equally dramatic conditions. While a native shepherd named Kerr was tending his sheep one day his attention was arrested by a yellow rock projecting a few inches above the soil. In his excitement at the discovery he ran to fetch his master. The rock was unearthed and proved to be a nugget of two hundredweight, from which 100 pounds of pure gold were extracted.

A few years later another monster nugget made its appearance at Ballarat. A party of miners had worked a claim to a depth of sixty yards when one of them struck with his pickax a hard, irregularly shaped mass, which on being unearthed proved to be a block of almost pure gold twenty inches long, a foot wide and seven inches deep. Its weight was almost one hundredweight and a quarter and its value $46,025.

It was the periodical discovery at Ballarat of these monster nuggets which first fired the blood of the entire world in the faraway fifties. But even Ballarat has no other romance to rival that of the discovery of two huge nuggets within a few days in the same claim. The story runs that four miners had worked their claim down to about sixty feet when one of them brought to light a nugget weighing nearly one hundredweight and worth $27,500. In their joy at such a rich treasure trove the men abandoned the diggings and took their nugget with them to England. They had scarcely left Ballarat when their successors in the claim, with almost the first stroke of a pick, turned over another nugget heavier than the first and valued at more than $35,000.

Of all the romantic stories told of gold discoveries in California not one is more remarkable than that of which Oliver Martin was the hero. For months Martin and a companion named Flower had been prospecting for gold to no purpose. Worn out by hardships and half dead from starvation, they were on the point of abandoning the quest in despair when fate administered her last crushing blow.

They were overtaken by a terrible storm, in which Flower was drowned. Martin, weak though he was, set to work to dig his fallen comrade's grave at the foot of a tree and had dug down barely two feet when his spade struck a hard, unyielding substance, which, to his amazement and delight, proved to be an enormous nugget, the largest ever found on the American continent. The "Oliver Martin Chunk," as it came to be known the whole world over, weighed 151 pounds 6 ounces and was the nucleus of a fortune of a million dollars which Martin accumulated in later years.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

VOLLON'S PUMPKIN.

A Painting That Drove Parisian Artists Into Hysterics.

It is a part of the duty of the official picture hanger of the Societe des Artistes Francais to distribute the canvases which are offered for the Paris Salon throughout the rooms of the Palais des Beaux Arts. The jurors are then summoned to examine these and commend or condemn as they see fit. The artists are at liberty to appeal to the jurors, and an influential artist can make trouble for the picture hanger. In this connection a story is told of Vollon, the painter of still life.

Some years ago Vollon had painted what he deemed his masterpiece, a luxurious pumpkin, orange in color and heroic in size, such as one sees at an agricultural show. The jurors did not approve the official picture hanger's choice of a place for it. A second choice also was found for it and condemned.

By this time the pumpkin had become the principal topic of conversation in all the studios of Paris, and the leading artists began to look in at the Salon to make sure that their exhibits were not being injured by an unfortunate contrast. One—Bouguereau—nearly fainted with horror on seeing the pumpkin not far from his pictures. "Take that thing away!" he shouted; "it kills my white and pink myshms!"

So the pumpkin was removed. But here Cornon objected. He declared that it should not stay in the same room with his pictures. "Its juxtaposition to my lions and bears and tigers," said he, "makes them look like tame cats."

Tattegrain was the next artist to protest. "Don't place it near my work!" he exclaimed angrily. "What becomes of the martial spirit of my canvases, and what is the use of exhibiting starving garrisons with a big pumpkin alongside?"

So the pumpkin was shifted about till it had passed through fifteen rooms, and not a member of the society would tolerate its presence. Finally the picture hanger placed the pumpkin in the entrance hall, officially called "Salle d'Honneur," but popularly dubbed the "Chamber of Horrors." Naturally Vollon became the mortal enemy of the unhappy picture hanger.—Harper's Weekly.

OYSTERS ARE LAZY.

They Spend Practically the Whole of Their Lives in Beds.

Just like confirmed invalids, oysters spend their lives in beds. The principal parts of an oyster are salt water and a handsome stomach.

Every oyster has a mother-of-pearl lined overcoat with the moss on the outside. But a Waldorf-Astoria oyster gathers no moss.

Oysters, as a rule, keep their mouths shut, but when they have been in society too long they begin to gape. They are fond of playing games, one of their favorites being ring-around-a-rosy. In this game they join shells in a circle on a plate. They live in the ocean in summer and during the winter months frequent the principal hotels and restaurants, where they have reserved seats on cakes of ice specially prepared for them. They are rarely met with at huskings or church fairs.

An oyster is a conchologist, by nature, a bivalve by profession and an appetizer because he cannot help himself. There are girl oysters as well as men oysters; but, so far as is known, one is not superior to the other.

Oysters vary in size according to their circumstances and their bringing up. Some are harder to swallow than others. There is no particular rule about this. But if at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

In June the oysters ought to be as rare as the days.—Thomas L. Masson in Judge's Library.

Beaten to a Mummy.

Until pretty late in the eighteenth century mummies entered into a great variety of drugs, balms and other medicaments. As the genuine mummy was then expensive, recipes were given by many ancient writers for converting human flesh into mummy. Usually only certain portions of the body were used, and these were beaten, dried, macerated and spiced out of all likeness to their natural condition, hence "beaten to a mummy." Numerous allusions are made to the practice in ancient literature, and in an old play, "Bird in a Cage," are the directions, "Make mummy of my flesh and sell me to the apothecaries."

Not So Green.

"Yeou city chaps think yeou are pretty smart, don't yeou?" drawled the farm lad. "Ever been to one of our spelling bees?"

"Never had the pleasure," responded the city boarder.

"Waal, by heck, yeou've missed a lot. Now our favorite catchword is ice."

"Why, that only has three letters. Why should the word ice be so popular?"

"Because it is easy to slip on. Ha, ha, ha!"—Chicago News.

It's Nature.

"I noticed in the store we visited to-day everybody was crowded around the perfumery counter."

"That's not surprising."

"Why not?"

"Oughtn't perfume naturally to be a scenter of attraction?"—Baltimore American.

The most completely lost of all days is the one on which we have not laughed.—Chamfort.

A MISMALED POET

The Tardy Marriage of Fitzgerald and Lucy Barton.

A UNION PITIFUL, YET COMIC

The Couple Were Utterly Unsited to One Another, and He Fled From Her During the Honeymoon—A Reunion That Failed to Reunite.

The incidents leading up to and those following the marriage of Edward Fitzgerald, translator of the "Omar Khayyam," were of a ludicrous and at the same time somewhat serious character. Mr. Francis Gribble gave the facts in the Fortnightly Review:

"The Lucy Barton story is very pitiful, but it is also rather comic. She was a Quaker's daughter, who had joined the Church of England as a means, one imagines, of climbing the social ladder, and she was just the sort of person whom Fitzgerald would esteem, but detest—prim, pious, methodical, fussy, not quite a lady and yet in a weird provincial way worldly, the sort of person to whom it seems equally important to teach in the Sunday school and to be a leader of society."

Fitzgerald and she had known each other for the greater part of their lives and were both nearly fifty years of age when marriage overtook them. He did not even know that he was engaged to her. But she told him that he was, and he was too polite to contradict her.

"Politeness only broke down when, after the ceremony, she assumed proprietorial airs and insisted that her husband should pay afternoon calls with her and dress for dinner. That was the last straw, though very likely it was also the first."

"Fitzgerald supposed apparently that in marrying Lucy Barton he had merely acquired a housekeeper who would know her place, who would confine her new dignity to her housekeeper's room, leaving him as free as of old to slop about in slippers, unkempt, unshaven, enveloped in a dressing gown until the evening, with books all over the floor, pipes all over the mantelpiece and tobacco ash all over his clothes."

"It would not have mattered, of course, if he had married for love and if his bride had been a woman of grace and charm. Such a one would have changed all that like a fairy waving a magic wand. But Fitzgerald had only married to oblige, and Mrs. Fitzgerald was not in the least like a fairy. She was more like a female drill sergeant, conventional, stiff and starched, yet with pretensions."

"Her flow of fussy small talk was a nuisance, and her interruption of Fitzgerald's meditations with the demand that he should shave and wear clean linen assumed the proportion of a tragedy in his eyes."

"He stood it for a fortnight and then fled, leaving the honeymoon unfinished, going off to stay with friends, bolting like a rabbit for its burrow."

"There were a reunion and an attempt at reconciliation, but in vain. Fitzgerald's letters to his friends at this period are like the letters home of a boy who is being bullied at school."

"I believe," he writes to Professor Cowell, "there are new channels fretted in my cheeks with many unmanly tears, and there really is no evidence that he had anything to cry about beyond the fact that he was being hustled out of a comfortable dressing gown into a starched shirt with high collars."

"That fact was symbolical of the general discrepancy of tastes and points of view. So we find him writing again: 'Till I see better how we get on I dare fix on no place to live or die in,' and then before long came definite separation and the drafting of a deed of settlement."

"Fitzgerald, it is said, used long afterward to walk up and down a certain garden path for hours together calling himself a fool, and when in later years he met his wife again he first put out his hand and then changed his mind and turned his back."

The Scales on the Hair.

If you look at a human hair under the microscope you will find that its surface is formed of successive overlapping scales. The bristles of the hog bear much resemblance to the human hair, though their diameter is greater and the tielike scales are much finer. Sheep's hair has much coarser scales. It is owing to the existence of these scales that one is able by a peculiar process to tell which is the tip and which the other end of a hair rolling it between his finger and thumb. Thus manipulated the hair always travels in the direction of the base because the edges of the scales prevent it from going the other way.

Watch Your Ice

Watch out in using ice these hot days. Be very sure you know the source of your ice supply before you use it in water, tea, lemonade and other summer drinks.

Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, who takes a personal concern in the health of the whole country, says it is very dangerous practice to put ice in drinks of any sort. The doctor has some definite ideas about ice. Some time ago he had a criminal information brought against the American Ice company of Washington charging it with selling adulterated ice.

It seems this company was bringing into Washington natural ice from ponds in Maine. The doctor had some of this ice analyzed and found it to contain "an added poisonous and deleterious ingredient, and consisted wholly or in part of a filthy, decomposed putrid animal and vegetable substance."

In other words the water in the Maine ponds is not pure, receiving some sort of impure surface draining. The company realized the doctor had the goods on it, pleaded guilty and was thereupon fined $150. According to Dr. Wiley, ice, even manufactured ice, isn't always what it is cracked up to be, which was a first class pun when first sprung in 1878. But listen to the doctor: It is a bad practice to put ice into drinks," he told the reporter correspondent. "There ought to be laws passed in every State forbidding restaurants, cafes, and hotels from putting ice into drinks. In private houses there is no excuse for the practice."

"The proper way to get cold drinks is to use coolers in which the ice does not come in contact with the liquid."

"Even manufactured ice may be impure, for not all manufacturers distill water to be frozen."

"Freezing does not kill the germs. Some of the most dangerous bacteria thrive in ice, some of them even growing in size and number. By experiment we have found that temperatures as low as zero will not kill dangerous germs.

"Much ice furnished city customers is the natural product. Often this is cut from streams which receive the drainage sewers. People would not drink the water from these streams for a minute. Yet they will tranquilly put ice taken from such streams into liquids to drink."

A SQUARE-DEAL

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and these are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless—even to the most delicate women and children.

Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or other organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures even the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

To find out more about the above mentioned diseases and all about the body in health and disease, get the Common Sense Medical Adviser—the People's Schoolmaster in Medicine—revised and up-to-date book of 1000 pages—which treats of diseased conditions and the practical, successful treatment thereof. Cloth-bound sent post-paid on receipt of 31 cents in one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TRAGEDY MARKS THE END OF A LONG CHASE

Italian Vendetta Carried Across the Ocean.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—Fearing that he would be forced to pay the death penalty for refusing to carry out a mandate of a secret society of Italy, Francesco Scali shot Yiesseppi Ceraolo, who he says followed him from Italy with the intention of wreaking the vengeance of the society upon him. The shooting took place in a basement cobbler's establishment in Fitzwater street, the heart of the Italian section.

The murder marks the close of a chase covering several years and which had as its starting point the city of Calabro, Italy. Years ago the men were neighbors in their home city and, like most of their fellows, affiliated themselves with a "black hand" organization. Scali one day was ordered to perform a task by the members of the society. Rather than carry out the will of his comrades he fled to this country.

Shortly after arriving here he was startled to find his former friend had followed him. He moved from place to place, but Ceraolo always appeared after each move. When they met Sunday the tragedy occurred. When Scali was arrested he told the above story, and it is apparently borne out by police investigation.

A NEW RECORD

Actor Comes Near Crossing Irish Channel in an Aeroplane.

Dublin, Sept. 12.—Robert Lorraine, the actor aviator, failed to cross the Irish channel by sixty yards Sunday. He left Holyhead at 11:05 in the morning, traveled sixty miles, being out of sight of land for more than forty miles, and then with victory apparently in his grasp, fell into the sea. Yachtsmen in the bay at about 1 o'clock saw an aeroplane descending from a great height. It struck the water about sixty yards from the shore, near the Bally Lighthouse. Lorraine, who was wearing a life belt, swam toward the lighthouse, from which a boat put out. Soon after the steamer Adela lowered a boat and drew the partly submerged aeroplane to the side of the steamer. The injury to the machine was slight. Lorraine thus establishes a new record for over-sea journey by aeroplane.

PASTOR UNDAUNTED BY LOCKED DOORS

Held Service Though Barred By His Vestry.

New York, Sept. 12.—When the parishioners of St. Johns Episcopal church at Fifth and Fourth avenue, Brooklyn, reached the church Sunday morning for services they found this notice posted on the door:

"The Rev. William N. Ackley, having been discharged by the vestry of this church, notice is hereby given to the congregation thereof that the doors of this church will be closed on Sunday, Sept. 11, 1910, and until such time as the vestry can procure a pastor in the place of said Rev. W. N. Ackley."

The notice was signed by the clerk of the vestry. When Dr. Ackley reached the church he saw the notice. The church door was locked. He returned at 10:45 and found a crowd of his parishioners waiting outside the still closed doors, and a few of the wardens and vestrymen who had taken action against him. He asked these latter to give him the key to the church. This they refused to do, and Dr. Ackley went through the formality of trying the old key in the new lock. It did not work.

Mr. Ackley thereupon announced to the assembled crowd that he would hold services from the church steps. He went next door into the house of a friend and put on his surplice and vestments and returned to read the service.

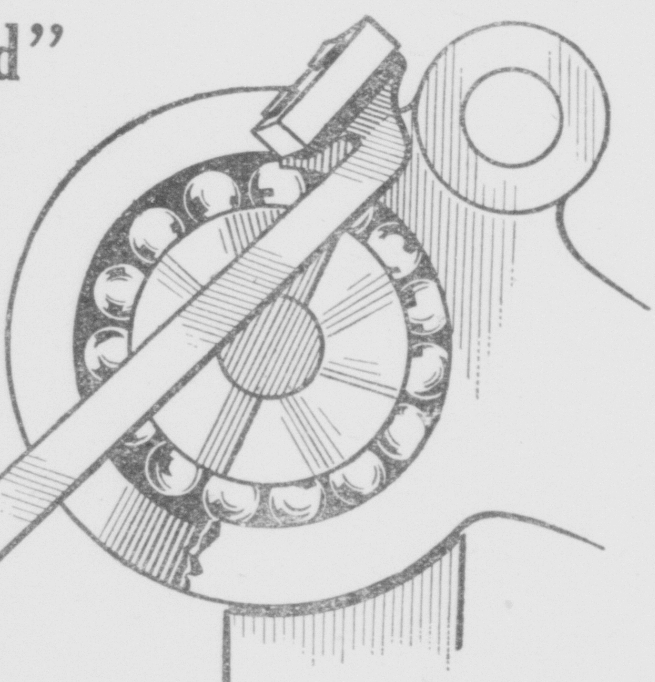

All the congregation stood except an old couple who were crying, and two chairs were brought out for them. The regular choir was present, and they sang the opening hymn, "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus." Although it was communion Sunday, they had to omit the communion. A row of tall elms shaded the congregation, which numbered in the hundreds by the time service was well started, many curious having been added to the number of the faithful.

In their charges, the insurgent wardens and vestrymen state that Dr. Ackley's "age and feeble condition, mental and physical, require that he relinquish a charge which requires a strong, vigorous man to keep together a fast dwindling congregation." This charge Dr. Ackley's friends regard as a personal insult to him.

American tourists spent $250,000, 000 abroad the past summer, much of it advertising in the competition for social success.

If Theodore Roosevelt so much as mentions the chapter and verse where any of the Ten Commandments may be found, Wall street gets the blue shivers.

Is it better to continue the Republican party of progress and efficiency, or to turn the government over to the Democratic party of calamity and disaster?

Tom Taggart says that Charley Greathouse is a clever politician. So Mr. Greathouse goes on the Taggart ticket for superintendent of public instruction.

They are in a big row over who shall have the privilege of sitting in the chair at the New York convention, but the carpenter who builds the platform has the more important task.

Taft and Roosevelt could not be expected to continue indefinitely without differences. A high geared automobile and a massive truck wagon are each admirable in their own way, but they don't always hitch as traveling companions.

Commenting on the statement of an exchange that it is not a vast population alone that makes a city, the Chicago News pays this fine tribute to James Whitcomb Riley: "A hamlet with James Whitcomb Riley as its sole inhabitant would be more notable than some of the settlements whose population runs into the hundreds of thousands."

It is very nice and convenient for howlers to have a good excuse, or rather a scapegoat. For instance, the Democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut, in his speech of acceptance, lambasted the new tariff law on the theory that it was directed against the interests of New England and in favor of the interests of the Middle West. Out in Iowa and Kansas, and in other States of the Middle West, insurgency is feeding itself upon the theory that the tariff was framed in the interests of New England! However, there is no reason why these conflicting theories should be welded into one harmonious howl against the tariff law.

NIRVANA.
WHERE the Buddha sleeps and dreams
All that is and all that seems,
All that can or curse or bless,
Here is true forgetfulness;

Where the lotus blossoms throw
Scents as soft as driven snow,
And, like driven snow, they cover
Hate and hatred, love and lover.

Where the Buddha sits and smiles
Is the end of all the miles;
At the great eternal goal
You may find and lose your soul.

Joys that please and griefs that mar,
Things that are not and that are,
All are shadowed images
Which the Buddha dreams he sees.

There is neither I nor you,
There is neither false nor true,
There is neither "Yes" nor "No."
All in Buddha come and go.

And the God himself, has he
Surer claims to dream or be?
Or is he himself a dream,
Chief of all the things that seem?

"No, mother; I'm just telling it what it mustn't say."

A Vicious Fish.

In South America there is a small fish that not only attacks its fellows of the sea and river, but is greatly dreaded by the natives, who during certain seasons have to ford the streams in which the caribos are found. Bathes are often attacked by them, the sharp, chisel shaped teeth taking a bit from the flesh wherever they attack. They are perfect scavengers, eating the animals that float down the river—dead or alive.

LAKE OF SOLID SODA.

Twenty Square Miles of the Mineral Found in Africa.

Fred Shelford, an engineer of the projected African railroad from Uganda to Lake Magadi, tells of a wonderful soda lake which he discovered after a most difficult journey over a waterless country. Shelford says:

"Lake Magadi is picturesquely situated between vast mountains. There were no signs of human life. We found the water a few inches deep, covering a hard surface looking like hard marble. This is an immense deposit of soda, which when bored was found to extend to a considerable depth, indicating an area of at least twenty square miles of solid soda."

A Pledge Song.

[Tune: "Abide With Me."]
Trusting in Thee, O Christ, for strength divine,
Humbly I make these promises of mine:
Whatever Thou wilt I'll gladly strive to do,
Thy willing servant make me, faithful, true.

Each day to Thee I'll dedicate with prayer
And in Thy word will seek my treasure fair,
While in Thy church's sacred courts I'll prove
By aid and presence an untiring love.

Wisdom divine, oh, grant me that I may
Yield to Thy sweet transforming day by day;
That Christ may rise in me, come toll or strife,
And strengthen me to live a Christian life.

Active in love's dear service I will be,
Ready to do my part for Thine and Thee,
Nor silent stand where Thine own children meet,
But with them lay my offering at Thy feet.

Then to the crowning place of peace and power,
The joyous, blessed consecration hour,
Gladly I'll come or send a love thought true
And there my covenant with Thee renew.

Lord, keep and bless our dear Endeavor band
And give us visions of a cleansed land,
All youthful zeal, all faith and hope unite,
That we may stand for God and truth and right.

CARRIED OFF BY A LION.

Thrilling Experience of a Ranger in the Transvaal.

Two men at least have given accounts of their sensations when they were carried off by lions—the great explorer Livingstone and a man named Wolhuter, a ranger of game preserves in the Transvaal. Wolhuter's adventure is not secondary in interest to Livingstone's experience. His story, which was attested by the certificate of the magistrate of the district, was substantially as follows:

He was riding along a Kafir path about an hour after sunset. It had been a long march, and he had pushed on ahead of his companions. His dog barked at something, and a moment later Wolhuter saw a lion crouching close to him on the right hand side. The ranger turned his horse sharply, a circumstance that no doubt caused the lion to miss the spring.

Wolhuter was unseated. At the same moment he saw another lion coming from the opposite direction. The horse rushed off, with the first lion in pursuit, and the second lion picked Wolhuter up almost before he touched the ground and gripped him by the right shoulder in such a position that he was face up, with his legs and body dragging underneath the beast. The lion trotted down the path, uttering a loud, growling, purring noise.

Wolhuter's sensations were not those of Livingstone, who said he was in a state of apathy, with entire absence of pain during the time the lion had him. The game ranger suffered terribly, both mentally and physically, and saw no possible way of escape. The lion took him nearly 200 yards.

Suddenly Wolhuter bethought him of his sheath knife, which he carried in his belt behind his right hip. On reaching a large tree with overhanging roots the lion stopped, whereupon Wolhuter stabbed him twice in the side with his left hand. It was ascertained afterward that the first stab touched the bottom of the heart and that the second one slit it down for some distance.

The lion immediately dropped Wolhuter, and again the game ranger struck him, this time in the throat, severing an artery.

The lion jumped back and stood facing him, growling. Wolhuter scrambled to his feet, shouting at the top of his lungs. He expected the beast to come at him again, but it did not. Instead, it turned slowly and, still growling, went a few paces. Soon its growl turned to moans. These, in turn, ceased, and the ranger knew that the beast was then dead.

Wolhuter got up the tree as fast as his injured arm would permit, and hardly was he seated when the first lion, which had been after the horse, came back on the trail of blood. By this time the plucky ranger was so faint that he tied himself to the tree to prevent himself from falling out.

He was found by his companions, who took him to a place of safety. The lion he had killed was an old male, and the weapon used was an ordinary sheath knife.—New York Tribune.

Peculiarities of Lichens.

The lichen is remarkable for the great age to which it lives, there being good grounds for believing that the plants endure for 100 years. Their growth is exceedingly slow, almost beyond belief, indicating that only a little nourishment is necessary to keep them alive. In a dry time they have the power to suspend growth altogether, renewing it again at the fall of rain. This peculiarity alone is enough to make the lichen a vegetable wonder, as it is a property possessed by no other species of plant. Another interesting fact about lichens is that they grow only where the air is free from dust and smoke. They may be said to be a sure indication of the purity of the air, as they are never found growing in cities and towns where the atmosphere is impregnated with dust, soot, smoke and other impurities.

Tingling Ears.

If your ears burn, people say, some one is talking about you. This is very old, for Pliny says, "When our ears do glow and tingle some do talk of us in our absence."

Shakespeare in "Much Ado About Nothing" makes Beatrice say to Ursula and Hero, who had been talking of her, "What fire is in mine ears?"

Sir Thomas Browne ascribes this conceit to the superstition of guardian angels, who touch the right ear if the talk is favorable and the left if otherwise. This is done to cheer or warn.

One ear tingles, some there be
That are snarling now at me!

The Advice Seeker.

"When a man asks me for advice," said the good natured person, "I always find myself getting into a discussion."
"Well," replied Mr. Sirius Barker, "most of us ask for advice because we would rather argue than work."—Washington Star.

HORSE NOTES

Harrie Jones, the local reinsman, expected to drive Gordon Prince, Jr., in the 2:07 pace at the State fair in Indianapolis this afternoon. Although Gordon Prince, Jr., will have a fast field to race against, he is believed to have a chance for a place in the money. The local driver believes that he has his entry in first class condition and he is going in with the expectation of finishing well toward the front. He will have such horses as Maggie Winder, who last year made the world's record for three-year-old pacing fillies at the State fair, Manager H. Billy B. Tad S. Geradine, Meadow Brook, Doctor M. and Peter Pan.

Two horses, Lady Maude C, 2:02 1/2 and Hedgewood Boy, 2:02 1/4, in whom local fast horse fanciers are much interested were entries in what is expected to be the best race on the State fair card this week. The four fastest pacers in the world, with the exception of Dan Patch, 1:55, went an exhibition mile at the fair grounds this afternoon. Local horsemen are awaiting the result with interest as they believe that the full brother and sister are the equal of the other two horses, George Gano, 2:03 3/4, and Minor Heir, 1:59 1/4. On Wednesday Lady Maude C and Hedgewood Boy as a team will race against George Gano and Minor Heir, bitted together, for the first time in the career of the four fast pacers.

In speaking of Clell Maple, the local trainer and driver, who has "made" many fast horses in Rush county and who is largely responsible for Aileen Wilson's career, George A. Ryan, an authority on horses, writing in the Indianapolis Stat says:

What a hold the trotter has on the affections of a man once he gets interested in the sport is illustrated afresh in the case of George Millikan the prominent banker of Montpelier, Ind. Several years ago he raced a pretentious stable with Harry Snyder as his pilot, and had more than ordinary success with Elwood, 2:09 3/4; Rose M., 2:14 1/4; Delaware, 2:17 1/4, and the sensational Dick O'Donnell, 2:08 3/4. Then he sold out and bought automobiles. Unfortunately for the machines, he wandered back to the race track and the germ immediately got busy and he could not rest until he owned a racer or two. He is now racing Fleetwood, 2:18, in William McGeath's stable, and what looks to be a decidedly high-class pacer in Princess Adria, 2:14 1/4, in Clell Maple's stable. The mare is a free-legged one with practically no boots, and is so perfectly mannered that she is a ladies' mare. Last week she won over a good field on a heavy track with all heats better than 2:15, and the last quarter of one mile in 30 1/2 seconds. And that's going some on a half-mile track. Over a mile track she will be better than a 2:10 performer right now.

AMUSEMENTS

The Star Grand offers an Essanay film tonight entitled "The Deputy's Love." It is an exciting story of the love of a Western sheriff for a girl bandit and his sacrifice of love for duty. A plot of exceptional heart interest, with thrilling rides, lively action and a highly dramatic climax. Miss Marie Williams will sing the illustrated song.

The Airdome will present a Biograph subject tonight entitled "A Summer Idyl." The farm scenes shown during the course of the story are undoubtedly the most beautiful ever photographed, showing farm life as it really is. Earl Robertson will sing the illustrated song.

At the Palace theater tonight a Selig film entitled "The Emigrant" will be shown. The film is an excellent piece of comedy taken from rural life, and is considered to be one of the best Seligs. A new song will be sung as a curtain raiser by Miss Iva Brown.

At the Vaudet that dramatic and pathetic film, "The Little Mother" will be shown. It is a picture that will cause emotion to rise in every heart and it is well constructed from a dramatic standpoint. A new song will be sung.

CHAPTER X.

GRUMBACH PICKS UP A LOCKET.

"I AM going into the garden, Gretchen. Bring me a stein of brown." The mountaineer smiled genially. "But I am not working here any more," said Gretchen. "She has had a fortune left her," said Frau Bauer. "Well, well!" The mountaineer seemed vastly pleased. "And how much is this fortune?" "Two thousand crowns," Gretchen was not sure, but to her there always seemed to be a secret laughter behind those clear eyes. "Handsomen! And what will you do now?"

"Study for the opera." The old man was jubilant. "Where were you going when this popinjay stopped you?" he cried. "To the clock mender's." "I've nothing to do. I'll go with you. I've an idea that I should like to talk with you about a very important matter. Will you come into the garden with me now?" "Yes, herr."

"So you are going to become a prima donna?" he began, seating himself opposite her on a chair in the garden. "I am going to try," she smiled. "Have you any dreams? I mean the kind one has in the daytime—when the eyes are wide open." "Oh, yes!"

"Who has not dreamed of riding in carriages, of dressing in silks, of wearing rich ornaments?" "Ah!" Gretchen clasped her hands. "And there are palaces too." "To be sure. How would you like a dream of this kind to come true?" "Do they ever come true?" "In this particular case I am a fairy. With one touch of my wand—this oak staff—I can bring you all these things you have dreamed about. How would you like a little palace, with servants at your beck and call, with carriages to ride in, with silks and velvets to wear and jewels to adorn your hair? A shadow fell upon her face. "By what right should I possess these things?"

"By the supreme right of beauty—beauty alone."

"Come, let us go for your clock," he said, rising. "I am an old fool."

Gretchen had gone home with her clock, but still Herr Ludwig, as the mountaineer called himself, tarried in the dim and musty shop.

"I've a watch I should like you to look over," he said to the clockmaker. The clock mender literally pounced upon it. "Where did you get a watch like this?" he demanded suspiciously.

"It is mine. You will find my name engraved inside the back lid." The clock mender pried open the case, adjusted his glass and dropped it, shaking with terror.

"So this is the end," the amazed watchmaker gasped, "of all my labors, to me and to what little I have left!" "Fiddlesticks! I am here for no purpose regarding you, comrade. Your secret is as dead as it ever was."

"Gott! For seventeen, eighteen years I have traveled hither and thither, always on some false clew. Never a band of gypsies I heard of that I did not seek them out. Nothing, nothing! You will never know what I have gone through, and uselessly, to prove my innocence. What benefit to me would have been a crime like that of which I was accused? Was I not high in honor and wealth? What benefit to me, I say—all my estates confiscated, my wife dead of shame!"

"But why the clocks?" in wonder. "It was a pastime of mine when I was a boy. I used to be tinkering

THE CLOCK MENDER PRIED OPEN THE CASE, among all the clocks in the house. The grand duke has a wonderful Friesian clock. One day it fell out of order, and the court jeweler could do nothing with it. I was summoned—I! No one recognized me, I have changed so. I had begun to give up hope when the gypsy I was seeking was seen by one of my agents. He alone knows the secret. And I am waiting, waiting. But you believe, Ludwig?" "Carl, you are innocent of it all. Come to Jugendheim."

"No, Ludwig; this is my country, however unjustly it has treated me." "Yes, yes. But if your gypsy fails you?"

"Still I shall remain. I am only sixty-eight, yet no one would believe me under eighty. There were letters found in my desk, all forgeries. I fled to Paris. I wrote Herbeck once while there. He believed that I was innocent."

"He keeps a steady hand off the duke."

"But you—what are you doing in Dreiberg in this guise?"

"Well, once upon a time there lived a king. He was young. He had an uncle who watched over him and his affairs. This prince regent had an idea regarding the future welfare of this nephew. He would bring him up to be a man, well educated, broad minded and clean lived. The lad grew up clean in mind, strong in body, liberal, a fine prince. In his palace few saw anything of him after his fifteenth year. He went into the world under an assumed name. By and by he came home quietly. In one month he was to be crowned. And now what do you think? He must have one more adventure, just one. And one morning his uncle found him gone. Ah! The prince regent set it going that his majesty had gone a-hunting in Bavaria. Then the prince regent put on some old clothes and went a-venturing himself."

"And the end?"

"God knows," said Ludwig.

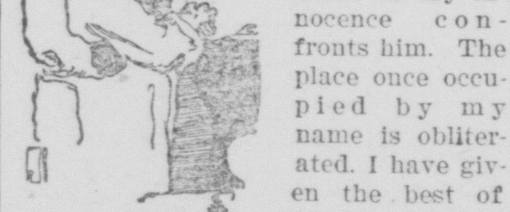

"And fatuous fool that this uncle was. He tried to marry off his nephew."

"I understand. But if you are discovered here you will be harshly dealt with."

The other shrugged and picked up his watch. "Can I be of material assistance? No? Proud old imbecile!" said the mountaineer kindly. "You have been deeply wronged, but some day you will be right. I myself shall see what can be done with the duke."

"He will never be brought to reason unless indubitable evidence of my innocence confronts him. The place once occupied by my name is obliterated. I have given the best of my heart and of my brain to Ehrenstein—for this! I am innocent."

"I believe you, Carl. Remember, Jugendheim will always welcome you. I must be going."

"PROUD OLD IMBECILE!"

"I am innocent."

"I believe you, Carl. Remember, Jugendheim will always welcome you. I must be going."

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 71 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

For sale and recommended by Hargrove & Mullin.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. Sold by All Dealers.

Carmichael walked his horse. This morning he had ridden out almost to the frontier and was now on his return.

No longer did Carmichael take the south pass for his morning rides. That was the favored going of her highness, and he avoided her now. In truth, he dared not meet her now; it would have been out of wisdom. She was to marry the king of Jugendheim; it was in the order of things that he ride alone.

The road to Elissen began about six miles north of the base of the Dreiberg mountain. It swerved to the east. As Carmichael reached the fork he heard the faroff mutter of hoofs. Coming along the road from Elissen were a trio of riders. Carmichael laughed weakly.

Should he mount and be off before she made the turn? He waited.

She came in full flight, rosy, radiant, as lovely as Diana. With a short nod of her head she signaled for the two soldiers to fall back.

The two were embarrassed. The little cavalcade directed its course toward the city.

"You have not been riding of late," she said.

Then she had missed him. Carmichael's heart expanded.

"I have ridden the same as usual, your highness, only I have taken this road for a change."

"Ah!" She patted the glistening neck of her mare. So he had purposely tried to avoid her? Why? She stole a sly glance at him. Why were not kings molded in this form? All the kings she had met had something the matter with them—crooked legs, weak eyes, bald, young or old, and daft over gaming tables and opera dancers. And the one man among them all—at least she had been informed that the king of Jugendheim was all of a man—had politely declined.

"I am guilty of lese majesty," he suggested.

"I shall not lock you up," she said, and added under her breath, "as my good father would like to." "Besides," she continued aloud, "I rather like to set the court by the ears. Ah, but I shall lead some king a merry life!" with a wicked gleam in her eyes.

"Frederick of Jugendheim?"

"Is it true that you have not heard yet? I have declined the honor."

"Your highness?"

"This, of course, is as yet a state secret, and my reason for telling you is not a princess's, but a woman's. Solve it if you can."

Carmichael fumbled the reins blindly. "They say that he is a handsome young man."

"What has that to do with it? The

GOOD NEWS

Many Rushville Readers Have Heard it and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Rushville are glad to learn that prompt relief is within their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands upon thousands of people are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. L. W. Smith, R. F. D. No. 10, Arlington, Ind., says: "My child was afflicted with kidney complaint and suffered severely from backache and headaches. The doctors could give no relief and the various remedies that were tried proved just as useless. At last we learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and my husband obtained a box. This preparation soon brought relief and since taking it, the child has been in much better health. I give Doan's Kidney Pills my most hearty endorsement."

interest he takes in his kingdom is positively negative. There will be only one king in Jugendheim, and that will be the prince regent."

They were silent for a few minutes. Finally the ambassador spoke.

"I have some news for your highness. I am about to ask for my recall."

The color on her cheeks paled a shade lighter.

"Is not this sudden?" she asked.

"I am essentially a man of action, your highness. I am growing dull and stupid amid these charming pleasures. I am wicked enough to wish for war."

"Cherchez la femme!" she cried. "There is a woman?"

"Oh, yes!" recklessly.

"Then go to her, my friend; go to her." And she waved her crop over his head as in benediction.

He did not speak, but caught up the reins firmly. She did most of the talking, brightly and gayly, but his ears were dull for the undercurrent passed by him. He was thinking deeply of her.

Within a few hundred yards of the gates Carmichael saw a lonely figure sitting on the parapet. He would have recognized that square form anywhere.

"AH, BUT I SHALL LEAD SOME KING A MERRY LIFE!"

"Your highness, do you see that man yonder on the parapet? We fought in the same cavalry. He is covered with scars. Not one man in a thousand would have gone through what he did and lived."

"Is he an American?"

"By adoption. May I present him? It will be the joy of his life."

"Certainly. Brave men interest me."

Grumbach rose, thinking that the riders were going to pass him. But his friend Carmichael stopped his horse.

"Herr Grumbach," said Carmichael, "her serene highness desires me to present you."

Hans was stricken dumb.

She plied him with a number of questions—how many battles they had fought in, how many times they had been wounded.

Her highness' mare grew restive and began pawing the road. She reined in quickly. As she did so something yellow flashed downward to the ground. Grumbach hastened forward.

"My locket," said her highness anxiously.

"It is not broken, highness," said Grumbach.

Then he handed it to her gravely.

"GOTT!" HE MURMURED.

"Thank you!" Her highness put the locket into a small purse which she carried in her belt, touched the mare, and sped up the road, Carmichael following.

Grumbach returned to the parapet. "Gott!" he murmured.

His face was as livid as the scar on his head.

Indiana to Be Marked On Field of Antietam.

DEDICATION OF MONUMENT

A Special Train Will Carry a Party of Indians to Antietam Where, With Elaborate Ceremonies, a Monument Erected by the State to Commemorate Service of Hoosier Soldiers Will Be Presented to the Government.

Indianapolis, Sept. 12.—A special train will carry Governor Marshall and a party of veterans of the civil war and their families from Indianapolis Friday morning to the battlefield of Antietam in Maryland, where the monument erected to the Indiana soldiers who fought there, will be dedicated and turned over to the United States government by the representatives of the state. The train will reach Antietam Saturday morning, and on that day, which marks the forty-eighth anniversary of the battle, the memorial will be unveiled.

An elaborate program, including an address by Governor Marshall and the reading of an original poem by Meredith Nicholson, has been prepared. President Taft will be represented by Brigadier General George B. Davis, judge advocate general of the United States army. The complete program is as follows:

Invocation—The Rev. Mathias L. Haines, First Presbyterian church, Indianapolis.

Music—"Star-Spangled Banner," Boonesborough band.

Poem—Meredith Nicholson.

Address—Major W. W. Daugherty, president of the monument commission.

Address—Governor Marshall, accepting monument and presenting it to the United States.

Address—Brigadier General George B. Davis, accepting monument on behalf of President Taft.

Following the dedication the veterans will spend the afternoon sight-seeing on the battlefield and recalling the scenes in which they were engaged. Only five Indiana regiments were in the battle, and each of these is represented on the commission which arranged for the erection of the monument.

BIG ATTRACTION

All Roads in Indiana This Week Lead to State Fair.

Indianapolis, Sept. 12.—Local passenger officials are anticipating record business this week on account of the state fair, which opened today. More interest has been shown in other cities and towns of the state than at any other previous year. Prospects of a larger and more varied display of things of interest in the rural sections are responsible for the coming deluge of visitors, it is said. More fine specimens of livestock have been entered than before, and this has much to do with the rural attendance. Scores of carloads of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs have been unloaded at the fair grounds. The display of farm implements this year will be a feature.

The state fair management is trying to make the visitors comfortable. A few weeks ago the officials began to make up a list of sleeping rooms obtainable in the city, with the result that more than 1,000 have been entered. These are confined to private homes and rooming houses. The headquarters of this lodging bureau will be found in the Indiana Farmer building, west of the administration building. When a visitor reserves a room he will get written instructions as to how to reach the place by streetcar and the price of lodging.

Caught Arm in Flywheel.

Anderson, Ind., Sept. 12.—Frank Harding, who has been operating a sawmill, is dead as the result of an accident. His stationary engine stopped on a dead center. Without turning off the steam Harding put his shoulder to the flywheel to lift it off center. The wheel started with a rush, and the clothing on his arm caught on a projection of the wheel. He was hurled so violently as to pull one arm loose from the body.

Made Fatal Mistake.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 12.—Mistaking carbolic acid for medicine, George Dustman, forty-two years old, swallowed an ounce of the poison and died half an hour later. The coroner asserts the affair was undoubtedly entirely accidental. He is survived by a widow and one son.

Railway Station Robbed.

Oakland City, Ind., Sept. 12.—Two masked robbers held up the night operator at the local railway station and relieved the cash drawer of its contents. Keeping their guns trained on the operator, the men backed from the station and made their escape.

Many Doctors Will Attend.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 12.—It is announced by the local medical society that fully 700 delegates will attend the annual convention of the State Medical society in this city Sept. 29 and 30.

EYES OF NATION ON MAINE TODAY

Election Follows Fiercest Campaign In Years.

NEW CONDITIONS CONFRONTED

A Certain Degree of Political Unrest In That Corner of the Country, Coupled With the Ever Present Prohibition Question in That State, It is Said Will Result in Notable Change in the Normal Vote.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 12.—With the issue of Maine's most strenuous campaign in over twenty-five years in the hands of the voters today, from a conservative standpoint it is said that the state is in doubt and that there is a chance that one Democratic congressman may be elected. Though both sides are confident, even the most sanguine of the Republicans admit that if Governor Fernald is re-elected he will not have a majority of more than 2,000 or 3,000. On the other hand Mayor Frederick W. Plaisted of Augusta, the Democratic nominee for governor, says that he will be elected by a plurality of 5,000. Governor Fernald was elected two years ago by a plurality of 7,223. The doubtful congressional district is the Second, where Congressman Swayzie is a candidate for re-election, and is opposed by Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston. In the contest of two years ago Mr. Swayzie has a majority of 1,200 over McGillicuddy, and since then the Democrats in the district claim that various matters have happened to assist them. It is said that Congressman Swayzie's attitude in favor of Speaker Cannon will hurt him in various parts of the district, and it is also alleged that in his recommendations for federal appointments he has made a number of enemies. This district was formerly represented by Charles E. Littlefield and years ago by Nelson Dingley, the father of the Dingley tariff law. It is thought that Asher C. Hinds, parliamentary clerk to the speaker, will be elected in the First district over his Democratic opponent, William M. Pennell of Brunswick. It seems to be the impression that Congressman Edwin C. Burleigh of Augusta and Frank E. Guernsey of Dover will be re-elected in the Third and Fourth districts respectively.

Although the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and alleged extravagance against the present administration have been urged why Republicans should desert their ticket, yet there are hundreds of men who are voting for the Democrats today on account of the workings of the prohibition liquor law. A few years ago the legislature passed a law known as the Sturgis bill, which gave the governor the authority to send deputies into a county where he had reason to think that the sheriff and other officers had not been enforcing the law. This law has aroused a number of voters, not because of its enforcement provisions, but because of what is termed an infringement against home rule.

LONG TRIP ENDED

Col. Roosevelt Returns to His Home at Sagamore Hill.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Mr. Roosevelt got back Sunday. The colonel was a somewhat tired man, but he was not all in by a long shot, and after a day's rest in his quiet home on Sagamore Hill, he was ready for the fray.

There were no crowds and no brass bands to greet the contributing editor as he stepped off the train in Jersey City. He hustled around to attend to his baggage, and then he crossed the river and got into an auto which bore him back to Oyster Bay. He spent the afternoon with his family. There were no visitors, and he hopes there won't be any soon, because he wants to answer a few thousand letters that have poured in since he went away.

Quits the Hamilton Club.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—A note of resignation from the Hamilton club, of which he had been a member many years, was the answer made by United States Senator William Lorimer to the action of the club president, John R. Batten, in withdrawing his invitation to the Roosevelt banquet Thursday night. The invitation was withdrawn at the demand of Colonel Roosevelt, who refused absolutely to attend a banquet at which Senator Lorimer was also a guest.

Claims Ten More Victims.

New York, Sept. 12.—The long list of more than 200 workmen killed in the construction of the New York, Lake Erie & Western railway's new open cut through the Bergen hill was increased by ten Sunday with the cave-in of a section of the adjoining old tunnel at the western entrance to the cut. Ten workmen were killed and as many more were injured, some so seriously that the doctors at the hospitals believe they cannot recover.

First Degree Murder Charged.

DR. COOK'S ESQUIMAUX SAY HE DIDN'T DO IT

Word Comes That They Laughed at His Story.

New York, Sept. 12.—Harold Hemment, the young photographer who accompanied Paul J. Rainey and Harry Whitney on their Arctic hunting trip, tells many interesting details of his experience in hunting big game and of taking pictures of the animals and the other hunters. He incidentally referred to a visit Rainey and himself made to Etah, where they saw the two Esquimaux Dr. Cook said accompanied him to the north pole, and where they inspected the hut in which Cook said he had left many instruments and data that would prove his contention of having been farthest north.

Young Hemment said the party picked up a group of Esquimaux to use them as guides. Among these men were Ootak and Etuckashu, who were with Dr. Cook.

"They told us frankly," said Hemment, "that Dr. Cook never went to the pole, and they laughed at the reports of his story of his trip."

SEEKING HARMONY

Governor Patterson Gives Up Bitter Fight in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 12.—Governor Malcolm R. Patterson has withdrawn from his candidacy as the Democratic nominee for governor of Tennessee, furnishing a sensational climax to a long and bitter preliminary campaign. The governor has already served two terms in office and had announced his candidacy for a third term in compliance with the wishes of the state committee, who declared him the Democratic nominee without opposition.

The opposition to the governor, growing out of dissensions in the party, declined to enter a primary, preferring to submit the matter to a convention and the governor, in order to avert the threatened split, withdrew in the interest of harmony.

SPECTACULAR PROCESSION

For Five Hours Churchmen March to Mass.

GREAT PARADE AT MONTREAL

Erection of an Open-Air Sanctuary and Celebration of Mass Therein in Connection with Eucharistic Congress Called a Hundred Thousand Churchmen to Take Part in Procession Witnessed by Half Million People.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—Over 100,000 persons, lay and clerical, formed the great procession which from a spectacular point of view closed the twenty-first eucharistic congress Sunday. It is estimated that close to 500,000 persons were massed along the route from Place D'Armes to Fletchers Field on the mountainside.

His Eminence Cardinal Vannutelli, walking under a huge canopy and carrying the monstrance containing the host, stood the journey from Notre Dame to the open-air altar well. Other dignitaries in the procession, many of them old, had to be assisted before the end of the route had been reached. At a quarter to 1 the mighty bells of Notre Dame announced to the waiting thousands that the procession had started. It was almost 6 when they again burst forth announcing that the host was leaving the church and the stream of flags and banners was coming to an end. That is to say, those forming the line of march, walking six abreast, took over five hours to pass a given point. In the procession the laity came first. Delegates from all parts of the world were included. A body of papal zouaves followed the police and firemen at the head of the parade, while another detachment brought up the rear.

The lay brothers led the clerical division. Then came the friars, the fathers, the priests, all the different grades of churchmen from every part of the world. They were followed by choir boys and acolytes. Following them came 150 bishops and archbishops clad in all the gorgeous splendor of the Roman church. Each bishop was attended by two priests.

The smell of incense and the singing of a boy's choir announced the coming of the papal legate and the host. His eminence was attended by Prince De Croix and the other members of his staff. Before him were young flower girls clad in red and blue satin, who cast flowers before the legate as he walked. The flowers were offerings from all the world, every Roman Catholic parish having done something to contribute blossoms. It was truly a bed of flowers his eminence walked upon from the church to the Champs de Mars. Following the canopy were altar boys carrying candles, and then more boys with incense.

The Sixty-fifth regiment of Montreal, the French Canadian corps, acted as the guard of honor. Cardinal Gibbons was the next dignity to walk after the papal legate. After him was Cardinal Logue, Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal bringing up the rear.

When the repository on Fletchers Field was reached the benediction of the holy sacrament took place, after which the clergy went to the Hotel Dieu, where the holy host was placed.

Last evening the whole city was illuminated and the crowds on the streets were immense. Many persons only came for the day and could find no place to sleep or to eat, or the means of getting back to their homes. Over a hundred extra trains left the city after 7 o'clock, but the congestion continued around the stations.

Almost insane with trouble in her family Mrs. Wicks left the dinner table and walked south a short distance over a path toward the canal near the place where Thursday night her husband is said to have attempted to drown her, and then leaped into the canal pretending suicide. It is believed by Coroner Wampler that she became temporarily mad and taking a cue from her husband's actions threw herself in the water and perished.

Both the stories of Wicks and the Thorne girl, examined separately in the Cambridge jail and the Home of the Friendless, were similar in the important features, and leave no doubt in the minds of the prosecutor and coroner as to their whereabouts on the day of the suicide. Coroner Wampler states neither could have had anything to do with the death of Mrs. Wicks.

Two small boys saw the woman in the canal about 12:30 o'clock Friday, but did not recognize it as the body of a woman. They were behind a hedge and could not clearly distinguish the disturbance in the water, which they at first thought to be a dog. The boys were in a flour mill just south of the scene of the tragedy and told employees there what had been seen, but the men belittled the story and it was not investigated at once.

However, not being satisfied, the boys went back to the canal bank and waited for several minutes. Other than numerous bubbles coming from the canal nothing was seen and soon after the boys went on to school.

The body was not recovered until 5 o'clock in the evening. Wicks had searched for his wife during the afternoon, and on hearing of the boys' discovery in the water, dragged the canal at that point, which revealed the dead body of Mrs. Wicks. It was taken to the home.

Two small children are left by Mrs. Wicks, aged two and five, respectively, which makes the suicide a particularly sad one. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Myrtle Thorne said to a Palladium reporter Saturday afternoon that there was no grounds for suspecting that she and Wicks were on intimate terms. She said that they had been friends but nothing more. Miss Thorne believed Mrs. Wicks held a grudge against her, but why, she could not tell.

Acting Coroner Wampler will render a verdict some time this week, and until after this verdict Prosecutor Ladd will not make his report.

COMPLICATED WAS RUNAWAY

Miss Anna Gillespie Jumped From Rig and Was Injured by the Fall.

HORSE SCARED AT AN AUTO

Policeman John Walters Succeeded in Holding Horse and Thus Eliminated Further Damage.

It was a complicated affair that brought injury to Miss Anna Gillespie yesterday. She had gone to the C. H. & D. station in their road wagon yesterday morning to await the arrival of a train. Dr. Miller of New Salem was there in an automobile, awaiting the arrival of a nurse. A young man by the name of McKinney, who resides in North Harrison street, was driving a young horse to a buggy and he was also coming to the station to await the arrival of the train. His horse became frightened at Dr. Miller's automobile, which was standing still, and started on a run toward the station. Miss Gillespie became frightened and jumped from her rig, in which she was sitting and narrowly escaped being run over by McKinney's buggy. In the fall she severely sprained the tendons of her left limb and received quite an injury to her knee cap.

The rig which McKinney was driving locked with the Gillespie rig and was upset, throwing the driver out, but luckily he escaped without injury. Policeman John Walters succeeded in holding the two horses and kept them from making "a grand getaway," which undoubtedly if it had occurred would have at least created commotion and possibly would have brought serious results.

Miss Gillespie is employed as teacher at the Rushville township school near Alexanders, which school began today. Her injuries prevented her from taking up her duties today. Miss Jessie Gillespie, her sister, will substitute for her. It is the opinion of her attending physician that her injuries will not leave her in a crippled condition, but yet a possibility of such exists.

DIPHTHERIA IS LIABLE TO APPEAR

Health Officers of the State Are Advised to Be on Lookout for Evidence of Disease

AT OPENING OF THE SCHOOL.

Dr. J. P. Simmonds, superintendent of the pathological laboratory of the State board of health, has sounded a warning to all health officers of the State to be on the lookout for diphtheria epidemics when school begins. The laboratory has just certified the results of examination of cultures taken from the throats of five children in Hammond, and all were found to contain diphtheria germs. Five families in as many different parts of the city, were represented by the cultures.

During the last three months the laboratory has found evidence of diphtheria in fifty-six cultures examined, as against thirty-six cases for the corresponding period of last year.

According to Dr. Simmonds persons apparently well often carry about diphtheria germs in their throats, and other persons recovered from the disease have been known to carry the germs for months. When the school resume, Dr. Simmonds said, with many children confined in one school room, epidemics are likely to occur, unless the health officers take prompt and decisive steps at the first appearance of suspected diphtheria.
